Therefore, integrated care, where health and social services are delivered in a coordinated way, shouldn't be just understood as a service delivery model, but also as a right to which any user should be entitled to. The implementation of Integrated care is frequently understood as a journey that starts either on the health sector or on the social sector. However, successful integrated care could also be achieved by designing right from the beginning a third concrete pathway, where health complexity and social complexity are scored and integrated care guidelines are assigned accordingly. A third pathway, the Integrated Care Pathway, implies amongst others a new market place, new	Chaired by Loukianos Gatzoulis, Health and Food Safety, European Commission The workshop will discuss how to approach the financing of integrated care implementation at scale.
